MODERN CHRISTMAS

'Tis the day before Christmas
And all through the house
Everyone's in a dither
Including the mouse
Clothes and stockings are flung in the bedrooms with haste.
Because not a soul has a moment to waste
There's the shopping to finish
Cake and pudding to make
Oh! my goodness, how my poor old head aches!!
There's the tree to be chosen, should be straight as can be
With long, dark green needles, a sight to be seen
Put it in that corner, we'll hope it will stand
While I balance the angel & glass balls in my hand
Oh! Stan that's not the tree at all
This here's the one I chose for the ahll.
Please take that one right down and out
Of, course this made poor hubby spout.
So finally after much fuss and adue
The tree for the house is up we're thru'
It's decorated with tinsel and coloured balls
It really looks pretty, glistning & tall
Think I'll watch "All in the Family" for an hour or so
And now I think to bed I'll go
I certainly need my beauty rest
So to-morrow I'll be at my best

I in my sexy black negligee
And Pa in his flowered shorts
Had just settled down for a long winter's snort
When out on the lawn there arose such a roar
I rushed to the window so I could see more
And what to my wide-eyed stare did I see
But eighteen snowmobiles flying with glee
As one came near the window, I could see
The driver of this one was Eric Whaley.
He pointed at me and said, there's a goon,
Who thinks we just returned from the moon.
The rest dipped and swooped and made curly cues
On the back end of one, the guy looked like Hugh.
But way behind, one more was chugging along
He looked very jolly and was singing a song
Dressed in a red suit from top to toe
He looked like a fella I ought to know.
As he drew closer I heard him say
My reindeer are old and its quicker this way
As he gave it the gas and roared out of sight
Saying, Merry Christmas to All and to all a good night!

For our Women's Institute Christmas meeting, 1972 each member was asked to do something for the program. Audrey composed this poem.

FUN OF A FARMER'S WIFE

It's a few years since I was wed, and still
I can't get through my head
Just how a woman can figure out
What men's minds are all about.
By now you'd think I'd know the brain
Of my good husband S.R.J.
Yet every passing day will bring
More proof that I don't know a thing.
For instance just the other day
When I was tobacco grading away
Says he, why can't you handle it faster
Let those leaves know your their master.
Grab 'em up and place them quick
It's really not much of a trick.
You'd think that I'd appreciate
Such kind suggestions from my mate.
Instead I clouded up right quick
And said, that I was tired and sick
Of doing all the tobacco chores
From green house to the ware house doors
And then have me grade from morn to night
And claim I didn't do it right.
From this day on, I says to him
You work at the end of the belt with a grin.
One day down there, smartened him up
At night he wasn't as frisky as a pup
I think his criticism backfired.
As I'm the cheapest help he's hired.

From our farm three products we sell.
The reason to buy them, I'll try to tell.
Our beef steaks are so good and tender.
After dining on them, a song you'll render.
Our real Christmas trees are the best by far.
They smell so good when you hang the star.
Our flue cured tobacco is so smooth & mellow.
Will give a lift to most any fellow.
When shopping please these products try.
I'm sure you'll find them a very good buy.
