long lane as one approached the porch at the entrance which had huge fluted pillars supporting the second story balcony. The front door had narrow windows either side with a fan light overhead. The reproduction pictured in the Atlas of 1877 does not do this stately old home justice. The front door opened on a wide hall with one of the lovely old stairways, and a door at the back led to another porch. To the right was a parlour and bedroom, to the left a large sitting room with another bedroom to the front of the house. A dining room was to the rear with kitchen pantry and washroom. Upstairs there were four more bedrooms and in the rear was the usual shed-like building of those times.

Now that some lovely memories have been recorded, it may be noted that heating the large, high ceilinged rooms was a task, we of today would fear to face. The installation of modern facilities was beginning to be a problem a long time ago.

Aunt Amy, whom I do not remember, was the mother of twelve children. Like her mother, Rebecca Jane Mills, she was said to be a beautiful woman. The picture at the beginning of this record shows a woman's face that has born children and lived and faced conditions more primitive than we know.

Jennie R. Smith and Fred Smith

Ernest and Arthur Smith

ANNA ISOBEL SMITH and BLANCHE SMITH LEWIS

daughters of Amy and Wesley Smith

Early in the twentieth century Anna and her father moved to the north part of their farm where there was a comfortable home, barn and sugar bush on the concession bordering their land. Ernest was planning to "go west" to Alberta, perhaps to remain, Arthur had married Minnie Moore and Would stay in the old home.

Apparently well established, Wesley informed his daughter of his plan to marry again - Mrs. Bella Robb, a widow from Iona and her sister Mrs. Betsey Apel, would be coming to live with him.

Anna decided that she would apply for training in the Amasa Wood Hospital in St. Thomas. In spite of being ineligible as to age and education, she was accepted. Her aunt, Mrs. Dougald J. Lumley and family lived across the corner from the hospital, providing companionship for both and encouragement for Anna who graduated at the end of her training highly commended by the hospital staff.

Anna's sister Blanche was already a Registered Nurse, had married and was the mother of six children. Her husband was the brother of May Lewis (Mrs. Oliver Silcox, her mother's half brother) and their home was in Alberta. When a seventh child was born, the mother contracted septicemia and she and her child died. Her husband also became infected and died, leaving six orphaned children.

Arthur and his wife had persuaded their sister to leave one child with them when a mutual attachment had developed during a visit, and they gladly invited a second sister to come to them. Mr. Lewis' sister, also a nurse, employed in New York, gave up her work and made a home for the other four children in Belleville.

The two adopted children brought much happiness to their foster parents. Alberta, the elder, married Sherman Matson, who was in training in the R.C.A.F. at the Station in Fingal. She returned to Calgary with him after his discharge. Dorothy married Donald Hamilton, who lived nearby. They made their home in Sarnia. After the death of Mrs. Smith, Arthur was well cared for by these two young women. Each were desirous of having him share their home and were overjoyed when he returned from a stay with the other. It was at the home of the Matson's that he died and was buried in Calgary.

In the meantime, Anna had become a very popular nurse in association with Dr. Smith of Fingal. On a visit to her sister, she suffered an infection in her hand which affected the whole arm. Through medical care and great sufferings, she recovered to join her cousin Jennie M. Smith, who had nurse's training also - in the Massachusetts General Hospital with Mary, Anna's sister.

Circumstances seemed promising for a fine future when disaster struck again. She developed encephalitis with its accompanying high temperature to damage the brain. She became a helpless invalid and was brought back to St. Thomas to the home of her widowed sister Elizabeth Claus by her cousin Jennie M. Smith.

With occasional help from her eldest sister, Jennie Rebecca, who came from Nova Scotia to assist, Anna was given every possible care until the elder sister was forced to leave and Elizabeth herself died. Arthur and Minnie then moved this tragic invalid to their home where she received the same willing and loving care until she died. Of some help to these devoted people was the sick benefit insurance Anna received to the end of her illness which began in 1925.

Mr. George Waite and Mrs.
Hannah Waite, former owners of the Land and Fisheries at Port Talbot at the South West corner of the Lake Road and the Iona Road.

They and their daughter Sarah are seen outside their home in Dunwich, just north of Iona.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Waite passed away in 1903. Three succeeding generations are buried in Burwell Park Cemetary.

Mr. George Waite, Sr., came to Dunwich Township to Elgin County from England in company with pioneers of the Pincombe and Logg families of St. Thomas. He was one of the earliest if not the earliest fishermen at Port Talbot. Early maps show his title to a large area of land on the north shore of Lake Erie, just west of the Iona Road.

His son, Mr. George Waite of Iona, married LaDica Miller, who was born on the Miller farm on the Lake Road opposite the farm of Mr. John Steele (father of Jean, wife of Frank H. Silcox, and mother of Clifford and James of Iona). Mr. Waite, while employed in the saw mill owned by John Kerr of Iona Station, had the misfortune to lose a leg just above the knee. In those days little help was given to a workman who suffered such an injury.

His son Lloyd spoke of the hardship his family suffered as a result of this accident. To us of today who have become accustomed to all the benefits received by the less deserving, it seems almost beyond belief. The writer knew Mr. Waite, remembers his efforts to support his family in spite of his handicap, but had no knowledge of his constant pain from a leg that did not benefit even from the medical knowledge of the times. (Anyone with a knowledge of the pensions, care, etc, that Mr. Waite would have received today, would be appalled. Perhaps the retelling will serve to impress the reader, that in spite of war and worries of today, we are immeasurably better off. All honour to the stamina of the family who without complaint have come through successfully and honourably.

Mrs. George Waite's sisters, Maggie and Lizzie Miller came to Iona in the early days to sew for others and probably had their shop in a house between the B. Willsons and W.J. Keiths of today. They became well known leaders in their chosen career later in St. Thomas, beginning with a shop in what is now Anderson's Ltd. - then Northway and Andersons.

One of Mr. George Waite Jr.'s daughters, Mrs. Mary House, is still living in the village. Lloyd, who married Coral Vail of St. Thomas, suffered the loss of his house in a fire, in which his wife lost her life. He passed away in 1962.

We are indebted to Mrs. House for a list of members of the choir of the Baptist Church in Iona before it was moved to Iona Station: the twins Mable and Millie Silcox, Sarah Waite, Loretta Canfield, Mary Huff, Walter Currie, Joseph Canfield and Jerusho Hamilton (later Mrs. Oliver Silcox) organist.

Mr. and Mrs. Waite and daughter Sarah lived in a house on the small farm just north of the Morris house in Iona.

Mr. and Mrs. Waite are buried in Burwell Park Cemetary. Mr. Waite started the first fishery at Port Talbot and they were all members of the Iona Baptist Church.

Mr. Joseph Britton 1809-1893 Martha Waite (1846-1929) (his second wife)

Mr. Britton, formerly of Port Stanley, bought the mill in the "Jonah Clark Hollow" and brought it to the village of Iona. It was located in the mill yard, Lots 4 to 11, west of an unnamed street.

A large pond was supplied with water from a creek immediately behind and curving to cross the road in front of this yard. A culvert remains, but drainage has replaced the creek.

This water from the pond and creek was diverted to supply water power for the mill. It also provided pleasure for the skaters throughout the winter.

A memorial Service was held in the Methodist Church, Iona, September 17, which was beautifully decorated with flowers and flags. Rev. W.J. Kilpatrick, resident minister, conducted the service.
