

Burwell Park

Colonel Mahlon Burwell had set aside 200 acres in the Township of Dunwich for Church purposes. Rev. John Kennedy, Rector of Tryconnel, acting on the advice of Mr. Thomas Pearce, addressed a letter dated September 20, 1891, to Rev. J.W. Marsh of London, advising acceptance of an offer of six dollars an acre for the said "Burwell Lot", but stating that by holding it for a year or two, eight dollars might be obtained per acre. Evidently a sale was made and the proceeds placed in a capital fund known as the Dunwich Trust from which Edward Burwell's accounts show that $1,006.76 was taken in 1871 and applied to the cost of the construction of St. Stephen's Church, Burwell Park. By 1873 the total cost of the construction and the initial equipment of that church, including the churchyard fence, amounted to $1,469.97, of which $288.50 had been raised by subscriptions and $94.00 by Sunday collections, including the offertory taken at the opening service on January 28, 1872.

The members of the building committee were Hannibal Burwell, Thomas Pearce, Rev. R.B. Rolly and Edward Burwell. The building contractors were Samuel Hawkrige and James Cole of St. Thomas. The consecration deed held by the Synod was dated June 15th of that year.

Of the ten acres in Lot C, Concession 10, Dunwich, donated by the Burwell family, about one acre was used, as was intended by the donors as the site of St. Stephen's Church and burying ground. The remaining nine acres, known as the "Glebe", was leased in succession to John Arnett, William Stroud, Fredrick E. Droper, William Fred Smith, William Chapman, William Walker and probably for a time to R. Campbell, each contracting to act as sexton and caretaker of the cemetery and Church. In 1896 a dwelling was erected on the nine acres. On July 10, 1933, the lot was sold to Mrs. Sarah Campbell for $800.00. This money was placed in the custody of the Synod for investment and designated as the Burwell Park Trust. In 1928, by motion of Vestry of January 17th, the Auxiliary fund amounting to $900.00 was placed in the hands of the Synod for investment. By December 1947 this had increased to $1,100.00.

In the Dunwich Trust, after the appropriation of $1,008.76 to the cost of construction of St. Stephen's Church, there evidently remained between $600.00 and $700.00. The capital of this fund in December 1947 amounted to $1,451.30. Where the increase in the capital came from is not known for certain, but it is known that in the above mentioned letter of Rev. John Kennedy, he mentioned the South half of Lot 11 in Dunwich as Church property. We can only account for the present size of the Church fund from some such source as the sale of that one hundred acres.

In 1903, James Walthew of St. Thomas painted and frescoed the interior of the Church at a cost of $150.00. Roofing and exterior painting were done the same year, the work being done by Robert Stevenson. The total cost plus the evestroughing being $62.22. In 1918 the church was re-roofed. The material cost was $80.90. In 1923, H. Gould of Iona painted the church at a cost of $130.00. In 1911 a new organ was purchased. In 1946 the church shed built in 1887, was sold by tender.

St. Stephens Anglican Church

The Iona Cemetery, which is one-half mile east of the Village of Iona, on the North Talbot Road (now Highway Number 3), is a silent reminder to the children of today that their ancestors have lived and died. In this small corner sleep nearly all the early settlers, with the exceptions of John Harris and Daniel Silcox, who are buried at Frome, and Brian Holme, who is buried on his farm. A monument stands to mark the spot, where he, his first wife and son sleep.

The first burial took place about 1816, being a man who was travelling through and who died and was carried for miles by his friends in search of a suitable place to bury him. The place where the cemetery now stands was offered by Daniel McIntyre, its owner; and the man was buried. Shortly after, a man by the name of William Angus, was killed and buried here.

The first record by monument is one, the wife of Samuel Garnsey, who died in 1820, age 68 years. Many monuments now stand to mark the last resting place of those settlers from this early date, up to the present time. Many persons whose burial place is forgotten and now unknown, rest here in this cemetery.

(The above paragraphs, in substance, are from a history written by Miss Mary Hamilton in 1896. Miss Hamilton's writing was printed in the Journal at St. Thomas in the same year.) Present records substantiate the fact of the gift made by Mr. McIntyre, of part of Lot 1 on the north side of the North Branch of the Talbot Road, and also of part of Lot 2 adjoining, by Mr. William Lodge.

The Last Burial to Date

Miss Mable Silcox, daughter of Thomas A. and Maggie Silcox, who died March 26, 1965, at the age of 89 years, was interred in the Silcox plot.

Periodically people have been buried in this cemetery down through the years.

At one time an attempt was made to improve it, at which time a few people of the community held a bee, removing old and broken stones, without marking proper locations. Some ploughing and levelling was done. The interest and effort was short lived, however, leaving weeds and brush to take over again.

In 1962, on November 21, a Public Meeting was held in the Iona Community Hall. Reeve F.J. Nimmo represented the Southwold Township Council, with Mr. Auckland, councillor and William G. Blewett, secretary.

The following trustees were elected by majority vote of those present at this meeting:

Mr. Austin Brown
Mr. Marwood Robbins
Mr. Henry Whalls.

Thus a Cemetery Board was established, and was given five hundred dollars by the Council to finance the beginning of the renovation project.

Trees have been trimmed, brush killed by spray, ground levelled, grass seed sown, and now kept mown every summer. All available stones have been saved and will be grouped in an organized position for all to visualize.

From now on this Cemetery will have perpetual care by the Southwold Township Council under the Provincial Cemetery Law.

S.S. No. 5 Dunwich

The very first settler in these parts was Mr. William Brooks of New Jersey, who settled in 1805 or 1806 on what is now known as the P.P.I. Farm. He started in 1838, a general store on his own farm, procuring his supplies from Mr. George Elliot, east of Fingal, and failed financially a few years afterwards. About 1840 he built a saw mill a few rods north of the present site of Iona School house. Owing to the irregular supply of water by which it was run it could only be operated during a small portion of the year. This eventually caused its abandonment a few years after being built. Portions of the dam still remain and it is a favorite resort of the school children.

Business difficulties caused Mr. Brooks to flee the country, and he died in Illinois.

The stream referred to above, towards its head waters was dammed by beavers, possibly several centuries ago, forming above it on the farms now occupied by Robert Morris and George Waite, a veritable lake covering about seventy five acres. In the days of the early settlers it was navigable for boats of considerable size and in later years I.P. Stoliker recovered from its mucky depths, pieces of timber resembling round cordwood sticks, on the ends of which the marks of the beavers' teeth were plainly visible. The land has since been drained and is now of the richest arable quality.

On the Brooks farm, already referred to, was born in 1838, J.C. Watson, nephew of James Watson. He afterwards became professor of Physics and Astronomy in the University of Michigan, and was commissioned by this university to visit China that he might observe the transit of Venus. Professor Watson was a voluminous author on works relating to the above mentioned sciences, and was building an observatory after his own idea at Madison, Wisconsin, when he died.

In 1808 the farm opposite that occupied by Brooks was settled by an American Revolutionist named Canute, who fought in the American War of Independence as one of a band known as "Butlar's Rangers". This man, from stories told by himself of acts perpetuated during his guerrilla career, was justly regarded by his neighbor settlers as a person of the most brutalized type. The lights and other supernatural phenomena alleged to have been seen for some time after his death emphasize the reputation of the man with his neighbors.

As might be expected, he had no sympathy with Canadian politics, whilst Brooks already mentioned, possessed an exuberance of loyalty for the land of his adoption, that exceeded that of the Canadians themselves, hence when it was found necessary to ask such men as Canute, during the War of 1812, to take the oath of allegiance before Colonel Talbot, Brooks was the strongest to urge it by a vigorous harangue and flourish of his cane. The Colonel took the reins in his own hands and shrieked an effectual threat to Canute - "Come forward and take it or I will confiscate your property".

Canute occupies an unknown grave somewhere on what was then his own farm. His death is supposed to have been hastened by his wife, who afterwards married a man named Johnston, employed as a labourer by Colonel Talbot.

Other early settlers were the Young Brothers from Lower Canada in 1815, who settled on the farm now occupied by Elder Pollard, where they were buried in 1824 and 1825, but all traces of their graves have been obliterated.

The present Piper farm was settled by James Lumley from Nova Scotia, father of Ephraim Lumley. Two immense spruce trees planted by him still are standing. These attest to the antiquity of the settlement.

As early as 1815 there was a mill, both for grinding and sawing, built by John Lumley, J.O. Lumley's great grand-father, on the farm now occupied by Robert Willson, which did good service to the community for many years. Mr. Lumley brought the stones and machinery from Nova Scotia in 1813.

The original school house of the section, a log building, was erected in 1844 on Jonah Clark's hill, overlooking the Hollow, and was used till 1860, when the present house was built. It was also used for Sunday school and meeting purposes. The size of the building was 20 x 22. It was provided with desks, had a library of over one hundred volumes, ten maps, blackboard was used, visitors' book kept, and Journal of Education was taken. There was also an extensive playground attached.

The first teacher was Alexander Salmon, who afterwards became insane. He was succeeded by William Moore. He was succeeded by J. Keillor; afterwards by William Harris, hereafter alluded to, who subsequently became one of the principal men of the village. Other teachers after this were Mathew Lodge, who became a well-to-do farmer, and died in the section, and Daniel Sinclair, afterwards M.D., of Melbourne and Toronto.

At this time books used were the National Readers, Irish Arithmetic, Morse's Geography, Jackson's Book-keeping, National Treatise on Mensuration, Davies' Algebra and Simpson's Euclid.

This school, as well as those of adjoining sections, was inspected in 1844 or 1845, by John Wilson, barrister, of London; afterwards a superior Court judge, who did the work without remuneration.

Mr. Wilson was accompanied in his visits by Squire Philpott hereinbefore mentioned.

The total number of pupils on the roll in 1851 was 112. The then teacher, William Harris, received £6 per month for actual time taught, and was obliged to furnish stationery and books.

On February 16th, 1852, the municipal council passed a by-law dividing this section by a line running through the middle of the 9th concession to the centre of lot 23, and establishing a new school section to be designated School Section No. 11.

Section No. 5, Dunwich, as it now is, faces the Southwold-Dunwich townline eastwardly, and also extends into Southwold, taking in the south half of lot No. 1. Westerly it is bounded by a line drawn parallel to the townline between lots numbered 22 and 21; Northly by Clay street, also taking in north of Clay street S.E. $\frac{1}{4}$ of lot 24, S. $\frac{1}{2}$ A, and S.W. $\frac{1}{4}$ of B, whilst the southerly boundary is as it was fixed by the before mentioned municipal council, with the exception of N.E. $\frac{1}{2}$ 22 and N.W. $\frac{1}{4}$ of 23, which have since been placed in School Section No. 11.

In 1856 the change was made in the section's minute book from the old to the decimal currency, the total moneys received that year being $349.15.

At the annual meeting held on the 8th of January, 1862, by resolution there and then adopted, this was created a free school.

The following have been the teachers since the new school house was built by Coughlin Lumley, thirty five years ago:

David Sinclair, already mentioned; Henry Harris, afterwards teacher of an English school in New York city, and at present living a retired life on the banks of the Hudson River; William G. Fraser, who afterwards carried on a brick and tile business west of Cowal; D.S. McColl, afterwards M.D.; Wallacetown, and now many years dead; Duncan McAlpine, at present a prosperous farmer adjoining the village; Daniel Galbraith, now M.D., Dresden; Archibald McLay, at present M.D. at Woodstock; Ebenezer McColl, now Superintendent of Manitoba Indian Agency, Winnipeg; Peter Sinclair, who died many years ago; Richard Stafford, now farmer, and J.P. Shedden; Duncan Sinclair, afterwards graduate of Toronto Military School, and at present a thriving insurance agent, Alvinston; George Duncan, one of the few who are still engaged in the teaching profession, at present near London, Ontario; Peter McDiarmid, now druggist, and chemist, Alvinston; William Dodson, afterwards minister of the gospel, Michigan; Robert McKeown, a genial Irishman at present merchant, Bay City, Michigan; Joseph Graham, who, although he has devoted a considerable amount of his time to farming interests, is still connected with school work, as district superintendent in Dakota, U.S.; N.D. Gunn, afterwards gold medalist from McGill College, graduate of John Hopkin's University, and now member of medical faculty of the first mentioned college; Duncan Taylor, afterwards farmer near Belmont village; Florence Ross, afterwards of Nebraska; H.F. Smith; Sidney Silcox, afterwards gold medalist from Toronto University, and at present science master of Collingwood College Institute; Maggie McPherson, who obtained the gold medal at Ottawa Normal School, and later on removed to Toronto; Samuel Piper, whose brief but brilliant career as a high school student is not yet forgotten. He died in the midst of his usefulness on March 12th, 1890, at the age of nineteen, and lies in the cemetery east of the village. Thomas O'Donnell, now principal of Wallaceburg Separate School; Blake Miller, at present student at Aylmer Collegiate Institute; Charles Lumley, now dentist student, St. Thomas, and finally J.W. Brown, the present incumbent.

In looking over the trustee's books it is very noticeable that each secretary has remained in office for many years; among the names might be mentioned those of William Harris, Mathew Lodge, J.B. Lowther, John Liddell and William McLandress.

Dr. Eccles, member of the medical faculty of Western University, and the well known London specialist; Dr. Douglas Decow; Montreal, Dr. Rosengrave Eccles, Blissfield, Michigan; Dr. L.E. Clark, Otsego, Michigan; as well as the following teachers were pupils of this school. Daniel Sinclair, Peter Sinclair, Duncan Sinclair, Henry Harris, Duncan McAlpine, Joseph Graham, N.D. Gunn, Samuel Piper, Charles Lumley and J.W. Brown.
