Teen makes OHL draft for Rangers

Jesse Cnockaert The Chronicle

MacKenzie Dick of West Lorne worked hard to get where he is, and it's paid off since he was picked by the Kitchener Rangers in the Ontario Hockey League Draft held May 7.

"It's been awesome. Great," said Dick. "I was very happy about it. Not many kids get drafted. I was lucky." It wasn't all luck. Dick, 16, has built up his skills playing for the Elgin Middlesex Chiefs for the last seven years, and before that, he played with West Lorne Minor Hockey. Leading up to the draft, Dick practiced on the ice four to five times a week, as well as off-ice training including stick handling, working out in a gym, and agility training with pylons.

But the hard work is just beginning. Last weekend Dick was attending the Kitchener Rangers Mini Camp where he participated in fitness training and practice games. For the next two weeks coming up to the main hockey season he'll be on the ice a lot.

"I've played since I was four. I love it," said Dick. "I love the competitiveness. I love being there with friends, teammates, mentor-ship from the coaches. It's a way of life." He said.

Just last April, Dick and the Elgin Middlesex Chiefs won their League Championship against Waterloo. That's only one feather in Dick's cap; during his last year with West Lorne Minor Hockey his team placed second in North America in Silverstick.

At 180 pounds and standing at 6 foot 3, Dick is a towering presence on the ice.

"I'm difficult to play against. That's what I was told. I'm a good penalty killer. I'm good for one-on-one against," he said.

Two local men will represent Canada along with teammates in a slo-pitch showdown against the U.S. next weekend.

Pitcher Jeremy Sutton, 36, of Wallacetown, has been named to the Slo-Pitch Canada Invitational Soft-

Outfielder Dave Boldt, 37, of St. Thomas, was a member of the 2009 and 2010 Canadian teams and returns in 2011. He plays for the Toronto Orioles.

Softball Canada, in conjunction with the Amateur Softball Association of America, is organizing the third annual men's slo-pitch Border Battle. The Canadian team will play against Team USA in a one-game face-off July 23 in the Oklahoma City ASA Stadium. "It's an honour. I was surprised," said Sutton. "It's a great feeling to represent your country." At the first Border Battle in 2009, the United States defeated Canada by a score of 30-23. Last summer, Canada bounced back with a victory of

The 2011 Canadian Invitational Team was selected by a panel of slopitch experts from across the Canada. Sutton was noticed as a member the Windsor Yardmen.

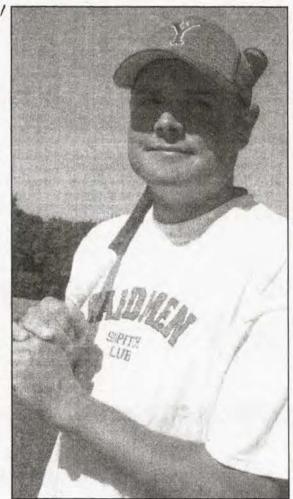

Sutton has played for the Yardmen for five years, and with them won the 2009 Softball Canada Slo-Pitch Canadian Championships in Lethbridge, Alta. in 2009.

Sutton played fastball in Dutton from when he was a child, and said he started softball when he was 17.

"As you get older, there're not as many things you can do as a competitive sport. Slo-pitch is one of them," he said.

The Border Battle will also be broadcast live at 3 p.m. on ESPN.

"I'm nervous, but excited at the same time. I'll be just happy to be there," said Sutton.

Ready to take on the U.S. Jeremy Sutton, 36, of Wallacetown, has been selected to be a part of the 2011 Canadian Invitational Team that will compete against Team USA at the third annual Men's Slo-Pitch Border Battle to be held in Oklahoma City on July 23.

Parish: Tyrconnell

Saint Stephen's Church is located in Elgin County on the Fingal Line, approximately a 20 minute drive west of St. Thomas, and just west of the intersection of Iona Road, which is known as Burwell's Corners.

Colonel Mahlon Burwell lived at that comer and was a surveyor for Colonel Thomas Talbot. Burwell did most of the surveying in this area, setting aside 200 hundred acres of land and through the sale of parcels of land, provided money to build Saint Stephen's Church. It was built in 1871, and opened for services in January 1872.

In 1911 a new pump organ was purchased. A church bell was donated and dedicated at Easter 1925 to welcome parishioners to Sunday services. Several years ago, an electric organ was given, and most recently, an audiocassette was donated in memory of our late organist.

In 1927, money was collected for a Perpetual Care Fund for the cemetery, which is located immediately east of the Church. Colonel and Mrs. Burwell are buried in Saint Stephen's Cemetery. Their unique tombstones are large flat stones, held erect by pillar-like columns.

For many years, Saint Stephen's had been closely connected to Saint Peter's Tyrconnell and Nativity Church in Dutton. In January 1974, Saint Stephen's became part of a combined parish of five congregations at Tyrconnell, Dutton, West Lorne, Port Stanley and Burwell Park. In 1979, Christ Church, Port Stanley became a single parish, and the remaining four congregations are known as the Parish of Tyrconnell.

Our membership has dwindled over the years as many elderly have passed away, and a few have moved from the area. We are mostly seniors and are too few in numbers to put on fund raising events. However, one of our dear members belongs to a quilting group who raise money for many charities, including Saint Stephens. We celebrated our 130th Anniversary in June of 2002.

Dutton church about to close

On Nov. 30, a service will be held at the Church of the Nativity in Dutton so the congregation can say good-bye to the building.

The congregation voted at a vestry meeting last September to close the building. The congregation worships at the Church of the Nativity in winter and at St. Peter's Church on Lakeview Line during the summer. The congregation is no longer large enough to provide funds for the up-keep of both buildings, so they've decided to sell the church in Dutton and begin worshiping at St. Peter's Church year-round. The deconsecrating service at the Church of the Nativity will be held at 2:00 p.m. Interim minister Brenda Clark said the service will mourn the loss of the building but also be about giving thanks.

"It's similar to a funeral in a sense, where you go and you give thanks for the life of a person. So you give thanks for the 'life' of that church and the many kinds of ministry that went on there and people who were members and who blessed that church with their generosity in all kinds of ways, she said. "We are hoping to retain the windows of the Church of the Nativity, and maybe make some special arrangements for those to be a part of St. Peter's. We don't have to say goodbye to it all."

The two buildings have shared a congregation since 1967. The congregation voted to determine which church they would most like to keep, and it was a narrow margin in favour of keeping St. Peter's Church. The congregation worshiped at St. Peter's during winter months last year as a trial-

"It wasn't like it was overwhelmingly in favour of St. Peters. Both churches are loved by various people. There's a lot of history," said church treasurer Elizabeth Timmermans. "Both buildings need care, and all we've been able to do is pay the basic operating costs and nothing more. I think it's sad to see the buildings deteriorating."

St. Peter's Church is the older of the two buildings, built in 1827. St. Peter's cemetery near the church is the burial place of Colonel Talbot, founder of the Talbot settlement. Since 1979 St Peter's Church, along with the Church of the Nativity, the Grace Anglican Church in West Lorne, and St. Stephens Church in Burwell Park have been in the combined Parish of Tyrconnell.

Church of the Nativity will be closing

The Church of the Nativity on Currie Road in Dutton will be closing following a final service Nov. 30 at 2:00 p.m. The congregation will worship at St. Peter's Church on Line Lakeview from then on.

St. Peter's for year-round worship

The congregation used to worship at The Church of the Nativity in Dutton during the winter and at St. Peter's Church during sum-mer. Soon "the Dutton- church will close, and the congregation will worship at St. Peter's year-round said Timmermans from page 1 keeping both build-ings open has been a problem since she became treasurer four years ago.

"The congregations are just not developing. Honestly I think people today look more to government for help, support, education, inspiration, everything, than they do the churches. I don't really agree with that but that's the way it is," she said. Anna Tokars the president of the Anglican Church Women (ACW) agreed church attendance is not what it used to

"There won't be many churches around unless we have a revival. Younger people just don't attend church as we used to when we were young,'

The ACW organizes programs to raise money for the church, and also holds bible studies, children's programs and dinners for the public.

A farewell to Nativity

BY SUN MEDIA

DUTTON — A deconse-crating service was held recently at the Church of the Nativity to officially close the building, but the congregation will continue to worship Eat St. Peter's Church on g Lakeview Line.

The closing service was also the day of the church's 7 118th anniversary, having opened that day in 1890.

The deconsecrating service gave the congregation a chance to say goodbye to the building, known by many as "the little church on the cor-

Some members of the congregation attending the service were baptized, confirmed and married in that building. Archbishop Percy O'Driscoll led the service and reminded everyone that the congregation will go on.

"To many of you, this building has been hallowed by cherished memories and some will suffer a sense of loss," said O'Driscoll during the service. "We pray that they will be comforted by the knowledge that the presence of God is not tied to any building or place."

of the Nativity will be taken to St. Peter's Church, so that a small part of the building will go on.

The Church of the Nativity and St. Peter's church have shared a congregation since 1967. The congregation could no longer keep up with the maintenance costs for two buildings so it was decided one would be closed in favour of the other. WALLACETOWN -Grab your overalls, a pitchfork and your best Jed Clampett outfit and get ready for a bit of hootin' and hollerin' this weekend.

To celebrate the 148th annual fair, the Wallacetown Agricultural Society presents a Hillbilly Hootenany, the theme for this year's fair which kicks off today and runs through Sunday.

Last year, fair organizers tried to gather enough pirates to set a world record. While they aren't going for any records this year, president Sheri Lack-ey said people are encouraged to dress and act like hillbillies all weekend.

"There are actually very few in Ontario that do the theme to the extent that we do We're up to any challenge as a group that we can possibly handle."

Events kick off with a opening up as well. Opening ceremonies start around 7 p.m. with the fair ambassador competition. Then, at 8 p.m., the fair will feature the Western Ontario Outlaws lawnmower races.

True to their hillbilly theme, the Hillbilly Olympics, there will be Hillbilly wheelbarrow races, watermelon seed spitting and the hub cap toss throughout the weekend throughout the weekend as well as a Clampettmobile pull.

"It (involves) an old stake truck," Lackey said with a laugh. "I don't know yet if we'll have Granny on the back."

On Saturday the fair opens with a 4-H horse show at 9 a.m. and a goat show at 9 a.m. and a goat show at 10:30 a.m. A parade starts at 1 p.m. with a baby show also held during the day.

And, of course, there's the midway, along with the last tractor pull of the horse show. Sunday, the fair opens with a sheep show at 11 a.m followed by a demolition derby at 1:30 p.m.

"During the intermission we're going to have outhouse races," Lackey said. With one personal ting, a group of people need to move their outhouse as far as possible to win.

"This is a huge success in the States. Who's to say what we'll do if this takes

Mowers at hit at Wallacetow

BY PATRICK BRENNAN TIMES-JOURNAL STAFF

WALLACETOWN The lawnmowers are back in the garage and the hillbillies are back at their day-jobs today.

In other words, life is returning to normal now that another Wallacetown Fall Fair is in the books.

Folks dressed in hillbilly costumes - plaid shirts, floppy hats and illfitting overalls - were a common site over the weekend as the fair board tried a new theme.

All indications are that it worked, said Sheri Lackey, president of Wallacetown Agricultural So-

"The weather held, which is a big thing for us," she said. Skies were cloudy Saturday, but there was no rain.

Attendance was about the same as last year, Lackey said.

"The threat of rain probably put some people

The hillbilly theme attracted a lot of interest, she said.

"We had a lot of hillbillies show up and a lot of entries in our classes."

Hard work by the fair board paid off in many ways this year, she said.

The parade was busier than ever and events like lawnmower races caught people's attention.

Lackey said she thinks a lot of people will be mo-tivated to enter that class next year.

"Quite a few people said they wanted to get their mowers out."

Wheelbarrow races were also a big hit, she said.

And no sooner is this year's fair packed up and put away than planning begins for the 2009 show.

'We're already mulling things over for next year," she said. "We're working on our 150th fair."

Lackey said the fair, said to be the largest in the western portion of Elgin county, draws from an area from Kitchener to Windsor.

"It's a big family gathering," she said. "Relatives come to be with the rest of the family."

The fair is a non-profit function that returns any revenue toward improving and maintaining the grounds, Lackey said.
