

COMMEMORATE COL. THOMAS TALBOT'S SETTLEMENT — Members of the Upper Thames Military Reenactment Society portraying the Royal Scots (1812) are pictured by Col. Talbot's grave site at St. Peter's Cemetery, Tyrconnell, last Wednesday evening. The Elgin Historical Society marked the 190th anniversary of Talbot's arrival at Port Talbot. Members of the Reenactment Society are pictured below serving bean soup from their display set up by St. Peter's Anglican Church. Two tents were in place as well, and those attending were told of the soldiers uniforms, firearms and the living conditions of that era.

SOUP'S ON — Elsie and Ken Fisher, members of the Upper Thames Military Re-enactment Society, served up a yummy cup of bean soup Wednesday at St. Peter's Anglican Church near Tyrconnell. They, along with the Elgin Historical Society, were celebrating the 190th anniversary of Col. Talbot landing in the area. — (Staff photo by James Barry)

Col. Talbot remembered

Re-enactment helps recall 190th anniversary of landing

TYRCONNELL (Staff) — Members of the Elgin Historical Society were out Wednesday night to commemorate Col. Thomas Talbot's landing 190 years ago.

To start off the evening, the Upper Thames Military Re-enactment Society put up a display typical of the War of 1812. They had tents set up, had a brief discussion on what the living condition for soldiers were like at that time, and even served up steaming cups of bean soup.

After the display, the group moved across the street to the cemetery where Col. Talbot is buried. A short history was given, as well as a cannon salute by the re-enactment troop.

Afterward a short meeting of the society was held in the church. The original nave of the church was constructed in 1827 with the rest of the church being built in the following years.

The Storey House, just down the road from the church, was also open for the society to tour. It was built in 1850 and was one of the finest homes in the area. It is currently owned by the provincial government and is rumored to be up for sale.

Malahide House---Photos taken in 1987.By MRS.Marga

MALAHIDE HOUSE---Photos taken in 1987--by Mrs Margaret Lackey

Inside of house.

1. Hall way and Front Door of Malahide House.
2. Dinning Room. To the left side of hall.
3. Parlour R00m. To the right side of hall.
4. Libary room.
5. The room where Colonel Talbot Desk is.
6. Master Bedroom.Where Colonel Talbot sleep.

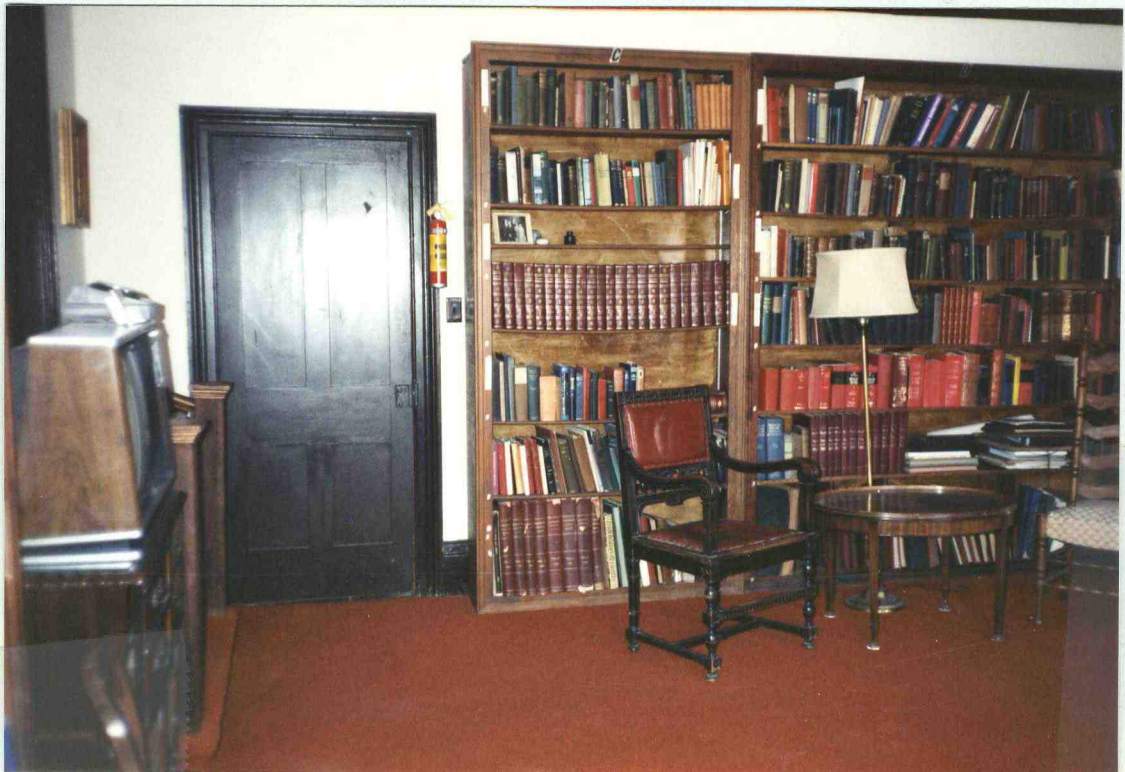

2

3

4

5

