To the Residents of Dunwich:

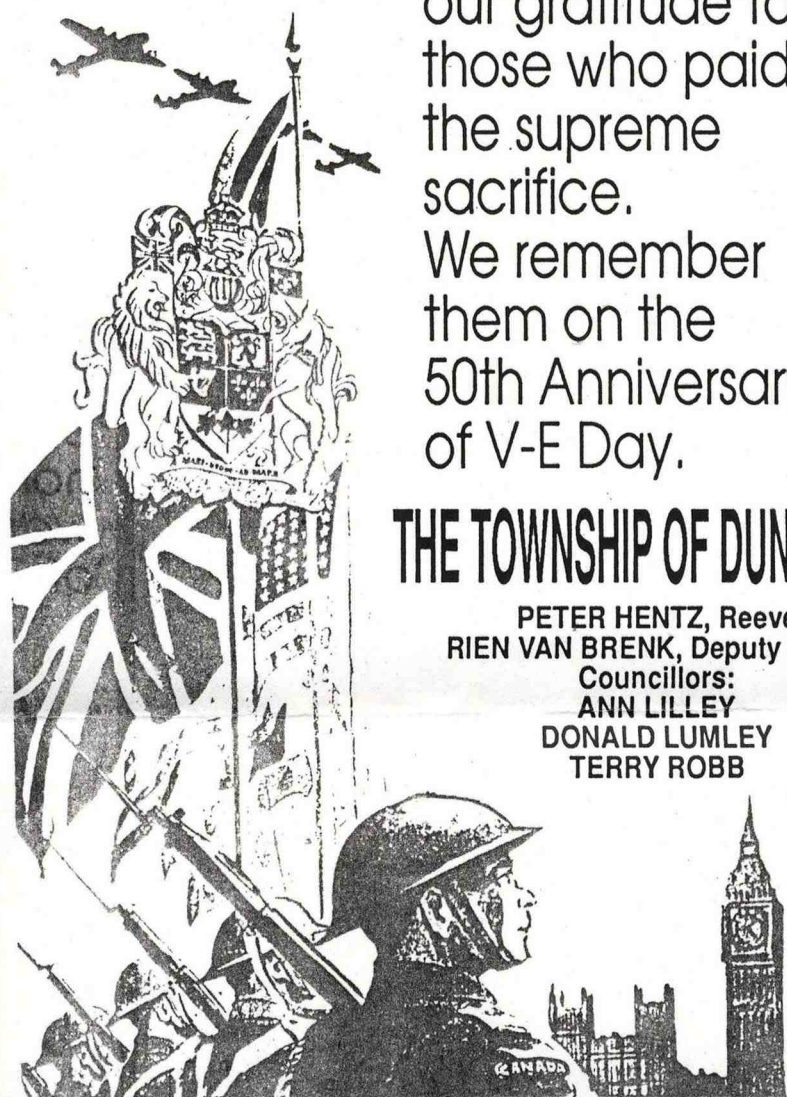

In a tribute to the valour of sons, daughters, husbands and wives who served their country with honour. We extend our gratitude to those who paid the supreme sacrifice.

We remember them on the 50th Anniversary of V-E Day.

50 YEARS AGO IN THE DUTTON ADVANCE

Local people observe V-E Day quietly; large attendance at Community Service Tuesday morning

The return of peace was observed in this community in a subdued but nevertheless sincere way. Unlike many other places where celebrations started upon receipt of word on Monday, stores remained open here and observance of the momentous event was confined almost entirely to V-E Day. However, a riot of flags soon bedecked homes and business places as the long-awaited word was received and young lads immediately exercised their ingenuity in rigging up all manner of noise-makers.

Services

Monday evening services were held in the various churches when the order of service arranged by the Canadian Council of Churches was followed.

Feature of V-E Day was the community service held Tuesday morning. It was originally intended to have it either on the new playground or in the Memorial Hall. However, a heavy rain had made the former location unsuitable and it was felt that the hall would not accommodate the large turn-out. Therefore, the service was held in front of the flag-draped Memorial Hall, with Reeve J.D. Fraser extending a welcome on behalf of the village and members of the local Ministerial Association conducting the service.

Rev. Thomas Fraser acted as chairman, and assisting were Revs. W.L. Nichol, who gave a brief address; Rev. Hill Hamilton, who read the Scripture lesson; Rev. C.O. Prerrill, special prayers, and Rev. Dr. J. A. MacLean, who offered the prayer of confession and dedication.

The inscription on placards which appeared in all places of business and which read "Closed, with thanksgiving and in remembrance," was the subject of Mr. Nichol's brief but appropriate address. This was not merely a holiday. It was a day of thanksgiving. It was one of the gladdest we shall see. But more than that it was a day of remembrance - a day to remember those who helped make it possible but who were not privileged to see it dawn. Moreover, it was a day of solemn dedication to those things for which they have fought and for which we have hoped and prayed. Truly, as in Israel's ancient days, "the Lord hath done great things for us," Mr. Nichol remarked in conclusion.

Assisting in the service of praise was a community choir of 70 voices, under the direction of Mrs. Norman Welch and with Mrs. C.C. Crawford as accompanist. In addition to the hymns, the anthem, "Great and Marvellous," was sung.

The Parade

Immediately prior to and following the service a parade arranged by members of Alexandra Lodge, I.O.O.F., and directed by Flight Lieutenant James Bennett, proceeded along Main, Centre and Shackleton Streets. Heading it were Piper James Bruce, Drummer J. Bambridge and flag bearers Pte. Walter Purdy and Pte. Robert McKay. Immediately behind were veterans of World Wars I and II. Then came the High School cadets and girls in their neat and attractive outfits, public school pupils of Dutton and Dunwich under direction of their teachers and bearing flags while behind them were several cars and trucks gaily adorned with flags and bunting.

One of the main attractions of the parade was the I.O.O.F. float, which besides carrying the lodge emblem, was a reminder of the splendid work the members have done in this war in blood clinic work. In the centre of the display was a cot bearing an imaginary casualty being given a plasma treatment. In the four corners of the float were representatives of the services, namely, W.A.C. Irene Boonman, Flying Officer Bill Johnston, LAC. Alfred Hawkins and Pte. Clifford McKay. Drawing the display was Neil McKellar's smart grey team, driven by Alistair McKellar, an officer of the lodge. Bob Affleck headed the committee arranging the float, which evoked many favorable comments.

Ladies of Dutton and Dunwich served refreshments in the Memorial Hall during the afternoon and evening.

Also at night were a high bonfire and fireworks on the playground followed by a dance in the Memorial Hall.
